

Amrit Koirala, MD

Consultant Diagnostic and Interventional Radiologist
Nepal Cancer Hospital and Research Center

- Dr. Koirala acquired his medical degree MBBS from Kathmandu Medical College(Gold Medalist) and residency training from University of Santo Tomas Hospital, Manila, Philippines.
- He completed his Fellowship training in Body Interventional Radiology at the Siriraj Hospital under Mahidol University, Bangkok, Thailand.
- He has additional trainings as International Visiting Scholar at Asan Medical Center in Seoul, Korea and San-Yat Sen Cancer Institute in Guangzhou, China.
- He has participated and delivered numerous presentations in various national and international oncology/interventional radiology conferences.
- He also serves as the secretary general for the Nepalese Society of Vascular and Interventional Radiology

Brief Intro

Dr. Koirala is a Diagnostic and Interventional Radiologist mainly focusing on Interventional Oncology. He is the program director of the Interventional Oncology Unit at Nepal Cancer Hospital and Research Center and Lecturer/Interventional Radiologist at Patan Academy of Health Sciences. He has been instrumental in promoting and establishing interventional oncology as a fourth pillar in cancer care in Nepal. He is credited for introducing Microwave Ablation and starting Interventional Oncology outpatient clinic for the first time in Nepal.